ABSTRACT

1

5

6

An improved structure of formative lighting fixtures comprises a frame, a 2 plurality of bulbs, and a refracting layer, in which the frame is formed by gathering a 3 plurality of rods and profiled in a specific contour, the bulbs are installed on the frame 4 to serve for lighting ornaments, and the rods on the frame are coated with a refracting layer of a transparent material. A formative lighting fixture so constructed can offer a dazzling effect to thereby reduce bulb amount and facilitate production.